

16 Creative Ways to Show Your Husband Love and Respect

- 1. Buy or make your husband a trophy and engrave it with the words, "The Best Husband in the World". (I found a cheap trophy at a party supplies store - the kids loved presenting it to daddy).
- 2. Listen with your husband to "your song". Invite him to slow dance along.
- 3. Plan an all red dinner for the family - spaghetti, strawberries, berry yogurt, fruit punch and red balloons on all the chairs - and don't forget a red candle in the center of your table!
- 4. Write with sidewalk chalk a love message for your husband on the driveway - for all to see!
- 5. Give your husband a massage as he watches TV. Make sure he gets the remote.
- 6. Write a poem - even if you can't write - it can be goofy. Include it in references to your favorite movies, restaurants, places to go and memories. He will enjoy the trip down memory lane and the laugh!
- 7. Recreate your first date together. Go to the same place and do the same thing together and stroll down memory lane as you remember how nervous you were!
- 8. Blow up balloons and put a loving message in each one. Fill your bedroom with balloons as a surprise.
- 9. Take a roll of receipt tape and write a long message with the things you admire and respect about your husband - then roll it up and put it in a bottle for your husband to open and read. (I made many of these for my husband in college when we were dating long distance. I mailed them in packages.)

- 10. Try a new sport or activity together...something neither one of you has done before.
- 11. Raise your glass at dinner, and offer up a toast to the one you love. List the qualities you admire in your husband for your children to hear.
- 12. Carve your initials in a tree (in your own yard).
- 13. Read your evening devotions together.
- 14. Write him a list of ten reasons why you love him and admire him and read them out loud to him.
- 15. Let your husband hear you pray out loud for him. If you don't pray together normally, then slip it in a meal time prayer.
- 16. Kiss him like you mean it!
